National Orange Show To Open February 21

The forthcoming National Orange Show to be held in San Bernardino, February 21 to March 3 will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization. Orange show officials assert that it will be the most outstanding exposition in honor of King Orange and the citrus industry that has ever been presented.

A preview just offered to the officials by the decorator indicates that the silver and purple decorations make it the most attractive decorative theme in the history of the show. The decorations are in keeping with the silver anniversary.

Among the highlights as given out by orange show headquarters is the following:

Nineteen elaborate feature displays; 10,000,000 citrus fruits in rack displays; industrial show, food show, amusement zone.

Entertainment program headed by Cecil Jefferson Stewart, musical director and a company of 55 persons.

The Greater Horse Show de Luxe with some of the finest show horses from Western America on exhibition. Twelve performances will be given during the show.

A great pageant of a historical character depicting the history of San Bernardino from the early days to the present time. This will be given only on Saturday afternoon, February 23.

Among the special attractions will be a score of bugle and drum corps on American Legion day; Canadian Queen and her court on Canadian day; high school relays; citrus institute; movie stars, bands, orchestras, glee clubs and choruses.

Governor Frank F. Merriam will open the show on Thursday evening, February 21st.

LEGISLATOR TELLS KIWANIANS ABOUT IMPORTANT BILLS

Ralph Wallace was guest speaker at Kiwanis luncheon Wednesday noon. Mr. Wallace is assemblyman from the 78th district and home from Sacramento during the legislature's recess.

The speaker has been instrumental in having passed the Mattoon act relief bill, which enables counties to buy in these securities at a discount, and which as soon as it takes effect will save San Diego county $1500 per day. He is also sponsoring a bill which will give definite authority to Mission bay and its adjoining lands, which have been under dispute for some time between city, state and federal government. Wallace stated that the main problem possibly, of the legislature, was taxes. Many revenues having been taken away and new sources were being sought for revenue. He also told of the task it had been to get thru the new moratorium measure, that the senate was anxious to pass only a bill which would give little relief while the lower house insisted on immediate relief to those in distress and their measure finally prevailed.

Splendid solos were sung by Myron Green, music instructor at Point Loma High school, accompanied by Mrs. Eva H. Demarest at the piano. The songs rendered were Kashmiri Song, Tommy Lad and Sweet and Low. Heber Hartvigsen was chairman of the program.

VALENTINE PARTY FOR MUSIC CLASS

The members of la clase musica enjoyed a combined musical and valentine party at the home of Mrs. Edith Reich on Newport Ave., Thursday evening, February 7. The program consisted of solo and duet selections on piano, guitar and mandolin, also vocal duets.

Thru the achievement and directive education committee of Ocean Beach Kiwanis a community forum and discussion group is planned and this organization will be assisted by the adult educational system with government agencies cooperating to make it educational and instructive, making it decidedly advantageous to any person who can spare an evening a week for their own betterment.

Other civic groups are being requested to join the movement and take an active part in the development of the forum or town meeting.

In our next issue we hope to be able to announce a definite program for the evening of Tuesday, February 19.

Cords Co. Making Piston Rings Here Now

Monday morning the Cords Piston Ring Co., started business in their new location at 1883 Bacon street with six to eight young men turning out Cords piston rings, the best ring on the market and now made in some three hundred sizes, for practically all makes of autos.

Since Mr. Cords started manufacture of this special steel ring some six years ago, demand has steadily grown until now agencies have been established in every state of the Union, Canada and some of the foreign countries. This industry has always brought some business to Ocean Beach and now that they are established definitely right here, we are sure every person and business wishes them continued success in marketing their product.

ASK CITY COUNCIL PLACE COLLIER PARK ON BALLOT

The San Diego city school board in its meeting of last Monday evening made a request of the San Diego city council that they place on the spring election ballot the proposition of deeding a section of Collier park to the school system to be used as a school site.

A survey has been made recently, it is reported, which shows this to be a central location, close to transportation, for the district to be served, and will prove a valuable addition to the school system of the city to relieve the ever growing crowded condition at Point Loma high school.

Wednesday the News was informed that the school board is asking for the north half of Collier park while the city manager does not want to give them that portion but wants the school board to have the east half of the park.

AUTO ACCIDENT MONDAY

An auto collision Monday noon at corner Saratoga and Bacon streets has kept Mrs. Walter Back, 4750 Cape May, confined to her bed, the balance of the week suffering, it is said with sinking spells as the result of being struck on the head and breaking the glass in the auto of which she was riding as a passenger.

The rain is blamed for the accident, both drivers stating they did not see the other car until immediately preceding the impact. Mrs. Rose Kelly, 4754 Cape May avenue, was driver of the auto in which Mrs. Back was a passenger and Doren Perrine was piloting the other car.

No one but Mrs. Back appeared to receive any injury and both cars were traveling slowly, reports to local police saying about 15 to 20 miles per hour.

Dr. Wilhot gave emergency treatment the injured woman having ten stitches taken in her scalp.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE MEETING FEB. 14 DANCE FRIDAY, FEB. 15

Beautification Campaign Planning Commission

The County Planning Commission of San Diego county has started an extensive campaign of beautification and improvement to cover every section of the city and county.

It is the purpose of the Commission in their beautification program to seek the support of each Chamber of Commerce, Parent-Teacher association and the public press.

They will foster an educational program seeking to accomplish their desired results thru our public schools, with classes in elocution, history and other suitable subjects, also a study of the sources of income and points of interest. Have parents help in getting the information and by so doing educate themselves.

They ask a local group to offer prizes for the first, second and third best written essays on local resources, points of interest, and reasons why visitors should not miss seeing their particular locality.

Suitable prizes for first, second and third best essays on San Diego County resources written by students of our rural high schools.

The best essay of one of the groups will be printed in letter form, it is hoped, and then each person in the community will be asked to send two letters to a friend or relative with the view of interesting them in San Diego and the 1935 exposition, thereby producing a great deal of publicity at small cost.

A great amount of work is being done in Balboa park in building for the exposition and everyone should take an enthusiastic interest and help along with a boost for 1935.

SALE OF CALIFORNIA LANDS IMPROVE GREATLY IN 1934

Indicating clearly a significant advance in the California agricultural real estate market, California Lands Inc., subsidiary of Transamerica Corporation, has reported for 1934 the largest annual sales volume and the largest income from the sale of its products for any year of its history.

The 1934 sales volume amounted to $2,002,259, exclusive of sales in acreage, which represents a gain of more than 98 per cent over the total of the previous year. The number of transactions last year totaled 391, which compares with 233 for the year 1933. Of the total sales, 27.2 were cash deals.

As California Lands Inc. operates throughout California, its results reflect general trends in the rural real estate situation of the state as a whole, and for this reason particular significance attaches to the average size of properties sold. During the last six years the trend has been toward smaller properties, as is shown by the fact that the property sold in 1934 averaged $5,121 as against $5,604 for the six year period.

PLANTING, LARGEST SHELTER BELT WILL BEGIN SOON

Initial work on the President's plan for a 1,000-mile shelter belt of trees stretching from North Dakota to the Panhandle of Texas will commence early this spring with the planting by U. S. Forest Service, of 4 million trees on 150 miles of the belt located in six different states. Raising his statements on explorations of the region, contact with local authorities and scientific data, F. A. Silcox, chief forester, says that the Forest Service is wholeheartedly back of planting shelter belts in the prairie-plains region and is more than ever convinced of the value of this project to agriculture and to the improvement of physical conditions.

Planting will be confined to a zone of agricultural land which under normal conditions should support productive farms and where there is an annual rainfall of from 18 to 20 inches on the western boundary to 25 inches on the eastern side of the belt, which foresters say is sufficient precipitation to support tree growth under proper handling. No attempt will be made, except experimentally, to plant trees on marginal lands, which, because of alkalinity of the soil or deficient rainfall present an agricultural hazard. The Shelter Belt will not replace marginal lands but will make good agricultural lands more valuable and contribute to the permanency and stability of agriculture.

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT PRESENTS "SOCIAL SECURITY PLAN"—GOLD RULING DEFERRED.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

THE most far-flung innovation the New Deal has proposed thus far—the "social security plan" proposed by President Roosevelt—has aroused a storm of discussion. Administration adherents greeted the scheme with wild enthusiasm, while the opposition, led by Senator Borah, Idaho, has voiced vigorous criticisms.

All business in congress has been sidetracked to permit immediate action on the proposed measure. Public hearings have already been started in the senate finance committee, and the house ways and means committee has postponed consideration of the bonus bill to work on the security plan. This is being done at the President's behest. The plan provides:

Flexible, but compulsory unemployment insurance under a federal-state system restricted to workers and financed by a 3 per cent tax on pay rolls after January 1, 1935. The government will aid in bearing administration costs, and the treasury will handle the fund. Ninety per cent of the pay roll tax is to be refunded to employers who contributed to state unemployment plans. A maximum of $15 a week of compensation to begin four weeks after the worker loses his job and to last for not more than sixteen weeks is contemplated.

The second part of the plan provides for old-age pensions. The government is to co-operate with the states and pay a maximum of $20 a month to persons over sixty-five. The national government is also to aid states in formulating a plan for persons under sixty-five which will be financed jointly by employer and employee through a pay roll tax; the funds to be handled by the federal government; the amount of pensions to be a percentage of the employee's wage; with non-manual employees receiving more than $250 a month to be exempt from the plan.

The third section of the scheme provides for appropriations to give better facilities to caring for mothers, and dependent and crippled children, and the fourth section would furnish larger appropriations for public health aid, investigation and research.

Cost of the entire program to the federal government will be $100,000,000 next year and $200,000,000 in succeeding years. The cost to the states will be $75,000,000 next year and $150,000,000 in succeeding years. Some idea of the size of the plan may be gained from the report of the President's cabinet which said reserves for old-age pensions must be maintained after some years at $15,250,000,000.

NEW DEALERS sighed with relief as the Supreme court recessed until February 4 without handing down its decision in the gold cases, thus giving the administration more time in which to prepare legislation designed to handle the situation in the event the court renders an adverse decision.

At the same time the court promised to decide a case presenting a clear-cut test of the constitutionality of the national recovery act, and which will probably have considerable effect upon the ultimate fate of the already bedraggled Blue Eagle.

The justices during the next two weeks will write opinions on cases heard recently, including in all probability the momentous suits testing validity of congressional action in canceling gold payment clauses in $100,000,000,000 worth of public and private securities. It is expected that the court will render its decision soon after February 4, since it has shown a disposition to rule as quickly as possible in all matters involving New Deal legislation.

LEGISLATION which would permit the small investor to buy government securities and which provides for radical changes in government financing has been introduced in the house by Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee.

The bill, prepared by the Treasury department, places the administration squarely against inflation. It provides authority to raise money necessary for the public works, social security and similar measures, meet federal deficits, and might even be used to provide funds for payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Under provisions of the measure there would be ten-year bonds in amounts as small as $25, and as explained by the Treasury department, would be sold below par. There would be no interest, but each six months the bonds would appreciate in value at the rate of 2½ per cent, plus compounded earnings.

Huge sums are involved: first, the creation of a revolving bond authorization fund of $2,500,000,000; and second, the consolidation of the two present revolving funds of $10,000,000,000 each into a joint $20,000,000,000 fund for bills, certificates and notes.

EUROPEAN statesmen anxiously watched developments in the cantons of Eupen and Malmédy on the Belgian frontier as gendarmerie reinforcements were rushed to arrest Nazi agitators who have been advocating annexation of that territory with the German reich. Loyalists report a campaign of terrorism has been carried on against those who have refused to join an organization directed by the Brown Shirts. The Belgian government is expected to lodge a complaint with the League of Nations.

A celebration was recently held over the Saar vote, and manifestoes were posted on the street corners urging the residents to "follow the example of the Saar. Return to the fatherland." Thousands of incendiary pamphlets, said to have been printed in Germany, have also been distributed.

The cantons which were taken from Germany under the Versailles treaty have considerable commercial importance. Formerly a part of Rhenish Prussia, they have an area of about 400 square miles and a population in excess of 90,000 people. Eupen boasts spinning mills and other establishments connected with the textile industry, iron foundries, machine shops and tanneries.

NORTH DAKOTA, for many years a political hotbed, ran true to form, as impeachment proceedings were pushed against Gov. Thomas H. Moodie, Democrat, by the dominant Nonpartisan bloc in the legislature. Charges are made that Moodie "usurped" the office when he "knew" he was disqualified to serve. It is claimed that Moodie is not a United States citizen, and that he has not been a resident of the state long enough to permit him to hold office.

Shortly after the Nonpartisan league faction in the house rushed through the resolution of impeachment, Moodie retaliated by stationing National Guardsmen at the executive offices to thwart possible attempts of foes to seize the official quarters. These were later removed when legal requirements for impeachment proceedings were met by the house.

WASHINGTON'S most talked of romance culminated in the marriage of Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, and John Boettiger, newspaper man. The ceremony was performed in the Roosevelt town house in New York, and the couple left immediately on a short honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Roosevelt, mother of the bride, told reporters she was not surprised, although a few weeks ago she denied any knowledge of an impending marriage between her daughter and Boettiger. Rumors of an attachment between the couple have been current for more than a year.

The bride was divorced from her husband, Curtis B. Dall, in Reno last July 31. Four months earlier Boettiger secured a divorce in Chicago.

RATIFICATION of the world court protocols received a setback when Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, California, bitterly denounced such action as a "back door entry" to the League of Nations, and senate leaders rather than risk an immediate vote, delayed definite action.

Senator Johnson's attack came on the heels of a special message to the senate from President Roosevelt who asked for early ratification of the protocols. It was the most determined movement yet made to put the United States into the court.

Other senators, it is said, were ready to follow Johnson's lead, particularly Senator Borah, long time foe of the court.

Johnson supported his opening attack on the court by offering four embarrassing reservations to the resolution of ratification:

1. Prohibit the court from entertaining jurisdiction on any question relating wholly or in part to its internal affairs.
2. Permit recourse to the court only by agreement through general or special treaties between the parties in dispute.
3. Prohibit the court and the league of nations from trying to assume jurisdiction on any question which depends upon or relates to the Monroe Doctrine.
4. Declare the United States, by joining the court, assumes no obligations.

Through Johnson's action, these questions must be voted upon before a final vote can be reached on the resolution of adherence.

Although the question has been sidetracked for a time, it will be brought up soon, it is said, and Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, has stated that he was confident of ratification.

ASPIRATIONS of half a dozen candidates for the more or less obscure office of Vice President were definitely dissipated when word was quietly passed that President Roosevelt will again team up with the genial Texan in the 1936 campaign.

Considerable talk has been circulated that a more liberal running mate for the President would be desirable in the next campaign, and it was suggested that the choice might fall on Secretary Wallace or Secretary Ickes, but an apparently reliable source indicates there will be no change in the winning combination of 1932.

THE final fate of NRA seems to be up to the President. Reports from the capital say the National Industrial Recovery board, successor to Gen. Hugh Johnson, who asserts NRA is "as extinct as the dodo," has avoided a direct recommendation that the institution be made permanent. Since this was evidently done with the approval of the President, the future of the Blue Eagle seems to be somewhat clouded.

The board, of which Donald Richberg is chairman, pointed out three possible courses which the President can follow. The first course would be to make NRA permanent, but in simplified form. Under this plan, every industry would have to go under a code fixing wage and hour limits and prohibiting child labor. Trade practice provisions would be entirely voluntary. In rare cases where price fixing is employed, the government, not the industry, would fix the price.

The second course would be to extend the NRA as it now stands, but for a limited period. Unless legislation of this kind is enacted, the act will expire automatically on June 16. The third course would amend and extend the NRA.

DEFENSE attorneys for Bruno Hauptmann indicate they will continue to pin their hopes on the mysterious Isador Fisch, little German furrier, whom they claim was the kidnaper of Baby Charles Lindbergh, and who used the accused ex-carpenter as an unwitting accomplice. Fisch died from tuberculosis in Germany.

Efforts have been made to link Fisch with every phase of the case—the Lindbergh household, the ransom notes, and the ransom money. Cross-examination of the defense counsel always swings back to the theory that Fisch was really the murderer of the child.

This will be used in connection with the expressed alibi of Hauptmann that he was calling for his wife at her place of employment on the night of March 1, 1932, and several witnesses to confute the state's claim that Hauptmann was seen near the Hopewell (N. J.) estate on the day the crime took place will be called. Several other "surprise" witnesses are expected to be produced by Edward Reilly, chief attorney for Hauptmann.

Meanwhile the state continued its attempts to show that Hauptmann financed his brokerage accounts with the $50,000 ransom money. Two certified public accountants, both government men, were called by the state to establish their claim that although the accused was in the market in a small way prior to the kidnapping, his accounts suddenly increased after the ransom money was paid. At one time prior to the kidnapping, Hauptmann closed out an account listing fifty shares of stock and received an equity of $600, but afterward transactions totaling $350,000 in the next thirty months were carried on by him.

This sudden increase, the defense asserts, was the result of Hauptmann being the unsuspecting "front" for the shadowy Fisch. The little furrier, it is claimed, was often seen with Hauptmann in a New York broker's office, and although all the transactions were carried in Hauptmann's name, it was really Fisch who was conducting the market operations and who furnished the capital.

The question of the banking and brokerage accounts is looked upon by both sides as very important in its bearing on the motive of the crime. The state asserts Hauptmann wanted money in order to live without working, and to satisfy his passion for stock market speculation.

WAR flamed again in Manchukuo as the Japanese massed 4,000 troops in preparation for a drive into Chahar province, west of Jehol and northwest of Peiping. Infantry and aviation units are being sent from Chengteh, capital of Jehol province, against Tanin and Tokochen, adjacent to the Jehol-Chahar border. The Japanese claim both towns belong to the Manchukuo regime. Notice to vacate the towns has already been issued to the Chinese controller of the province.

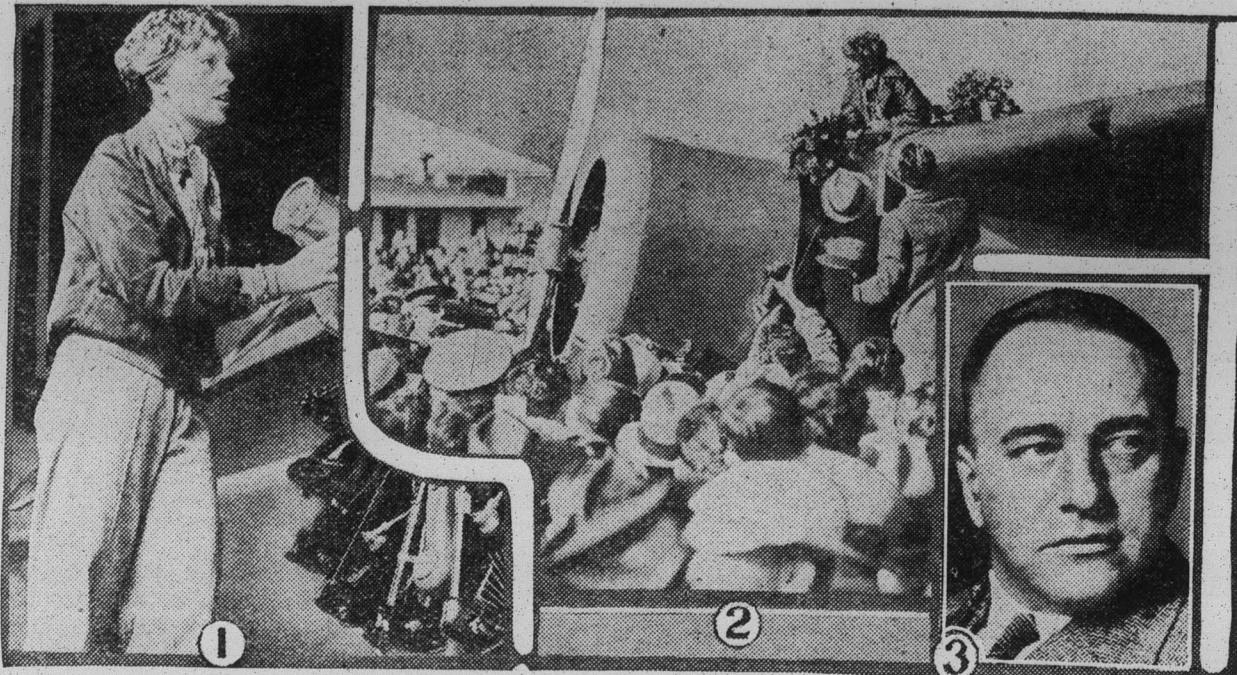

Japan's action is seen by Chinese leaders as a determined gesture to intimidate Mongolian princes of Inner Mongolia and to cut the overland route connecting Peiping with Urga, capital of Soviet controlled Outer Mongolia.

The situation is viewed with considerable apprehension by Soviet Russia. The drive will bring Japanese military operations into direct contact with the borders of Outer Mongolia, and practically all high officials of the territory who have been attending the Soviet anniversary celebrations in Moscow have hurried back to their provinces.

THE increasing importance of the Orient as an outlet for American trade, and the swift convergence of European air lines upon that area have prompted rapid advancement of plans for establishment of an experimental air transport service which is expected to reduce transportation time between the Orient and the New world by 60 flying hours.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, it has been announced, will take a leading part in blazing the new trail across the Pacific. At present he is awaiting the outcome of the trial of Bruno Hauptmann, accused of the Lindbergh baby murder. Mrs. Lindbergh is not expected to accompany her husband on the trip.

PETER DISCOVERS SNOWFLAKE

ROUGH BROTHER NORTH WIND hurried up one big cloud after another, and late in the afternoon white, feathery flakes came drifting down out of the sky. Peter Rabbit sat tight in the dear Old Briar Patch. All night he remained squatting just inside the entrance to an old hole Johnny Chuck's grandfather had dug a long time ago in the middle of the dear Old Briar Patch. Some time before morning the snow stopped falling and then Rough Brother North Wind worked as hard to blow away the clouds as he had to bring them.

When jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun began his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky he looked down on a world of white. It seemed as if every little snowflake twinkled back at every Jolly Little Sunbeam. It was all very lively and Peter Rabbit rejoiced as he scampered forth in quest of his breakfast.

He started first for the weedy field where the day before he had found Dotty the Tree Sparrow and Slaty the Junco. They were there before him, not seeming to mind the snow in the least and having the very best of good times, as they picked seeds from the tops of the weeds which showed above the snow.

"Are You Going to Spend the Winter Here, Snowflake?" He Cried.

At once Peter discovered that they were not alone. Quite as busy seeking seeds as were Dotty and Slaty was a bird just a little bigger. The top of his head and back were a rusty brown and on his back were streaks of black. Back of each eye and on each shoulder was a little patch of this same rusty brown. The inner tail feathers were black, and the outer half of the long wing feathers were black. Otherwise he was dressed all in white. It was Snowflake and Snow Bunting. Peter knew him instantly. He knew that there is no other small bird who is so largely white. Peter had his usual question ready.

"Are you going to spend the winter here, Snowflake?" he cried.

Snowflake was so busy getting his breakfast that he did not reply at once. Peter noticed that instead of hopping he walked or ran. Presently he paused long enough to reply to Peter's question. "If the snow has come to stay all winter, perhaps I'll stay," said he. "I can't understand how folks can be contented where there is no snow and ice. You don't catch me going way down South. Why, when the nesting season comes around I follow Jack Frost clear up to where he spends the summer. I nest way up on the shore of the Polar Sea, but, of course, you don't know where that is, Peter Rabbit."

Peter confessed that he didn't.

MOTHER'S
COOK BOOK

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

TRY adding a bit of grated lemon rind with the usual seasonings for pumpkin pie; it gives an added flavor. In every well-furnished kitchen one should find accurate scales and measuring utensils, a pair of shears to be used only in the preparation of food; and since the success of a dish depends often upon timing its cooking or baking, a reliable clock.

When cooking squash, wash and scrub it well, then cut into convenient sized pieces to go into the steamer. Cook until tender, then scoop out the squash, mash, season with butter, cream, salt and a grating of orange peel. A small amount of sugar adds much to various dishes, fresh vegetables, meats and meat sauces. It accentuates the various flavors, binds them into a harmonious whole and enriches the color.

When starting out for a day of shopping buy or carry a small package of your favorite candy. When feeling ready to drop with fatigue eat a piece of candy and see how quickly you are pepped up. It will drive away that exhausted feeling and give you plenty of energy to carry on. Sugar is one of the world's greatest energy foods. The hundreds of pounds of candy that were consumed by Admiral Byrd's men during their long Antarctic winter will testify to its value.

A turkish towel or piece of heavy outing flannel placed on the draining board or in the bottom of the dish-pan when washing delicate china will save many a treasured dish from breakage. The habit of so many dish washers is to place half a dozen fragile cups together in a pan of water and while floating around the handles are sure to be knocked off or cracked. With china as expensive as it is today, we need to use great care in handling it.

Add a few drops of lime juice to honeydew melons when serving.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a drinking man, but my wife made me sign a pledge that I would not take a drink of whisky for one year. Gee! I'm dying for a drink. What shall I do?

Yours truly,

A. LUSH.

Answer: Buy a ticket for the Odion theater and go to see the show and at intermission it will be perfectly all right for you to take a drink. Your pledge is only for one year and the play you are going to see has two acts and three years elapse between the first and second acts.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am writing to you as I know you are a dear friend of my father. You, of course, remember what a great pistol shot he has always been. Well, yesterday he put a bottle of Scotch

KAY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IF YOU meet a young girl with a spirit that shines
Like a heavenly light from her brave eyes of gray,
The lift of your heart will be one of the signs—
That's Kay!

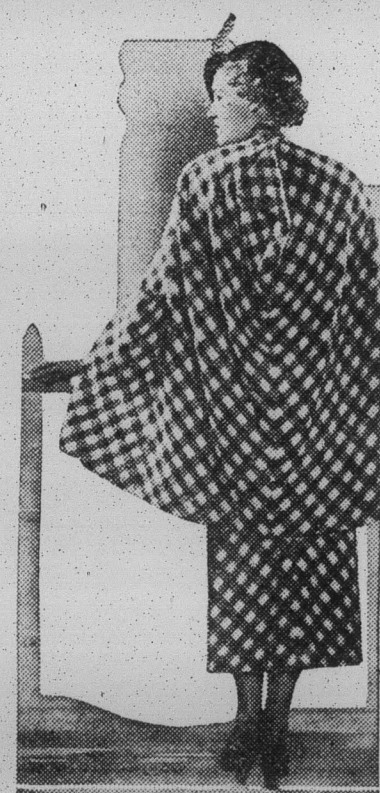

She is like a small boat that bobs over the wave,
So sure that the storm will not sweep her away.
The faith of her fathers has power to save,
Says Kay!

Perhaps she has troubles, but nobody knows.
They're locked in her heart, and her laughter is gay.
"The world is no better for knowing my woes,"
Says Kay!

She's true and warm-hearted; she's happy, and sure
That the sun's never far from the clouds of today.
And her friendship is golden and it will endure!
That's Kay!

these three words together?

Yours truly,

I. FLUNKED.

Answer: Your teacher was right in giving you a bad mark for connecting the three words HE AND PRUNES. The first book of English tells us that "prunes" is a noun and should only be used in boarding houses, while the word "AND," unlike an adverb is a conjunction. In your example you have used the conjunction "AND" to connect the word "prunes," which is a noun, with the word "HE." The word "HE" is a personal pronoun at all times, except when used for laughing purposes, like HE-HE-HE.

PLEASANT THOUGHTS

CONSTIPATION
Can be Helped!

(Use what Doctors do)

Why do the bowels usually move regularly and thoroughly, long after a physician has given you treatment for constipation?

Because the doctor gives a liquid laxative that can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Ask your doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Your druggist has it; ask for—

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

While "Honest Abe" was not "born with a silver spoon in his mouth," yet he inherited his traits of character from good parentage with an ancestry of rare English descendants. Born in a crude log hovel down in Hodgenville, Ky., he became the proud son of Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln. While a lad he was just another neighborhood boy—big, awkward and homely. About the first job he ever had was working on a flat-boat plying the Mississippi river into New Orleans.

It was during these experiences that he saw slavery going on in its ranker forms. Lincoln, with his great heart of sympathy, when but a young man, went out deeply to the poor colored masses. He resolved that if he ever had the opportunity, he would put down slavery—and he did at the cost of his life. Few young men have such determination to get an education, and by hard effort and midnight study, he qualified himself, not only through self-education, but a judgement and leadership that has never been equalled since his time in United States history.

Lincoln was elected to Illinois State Legislature when 25 years old, declining to serve a third term. He was Springfield's ablest lawyer and rapidly rose into statesmanship, first going to Congress in 1846. He asserted his strength, ability and influence against slavery in no uncertain terms. Finally in 1860 he was elected President of the United States on the Republican ticket. This led to the formidable secession of southern states, which at once threw the nation into Civil War.

With one of the bloodiest and most cruel wars on his hands, Lincoln stood gaunt but adamant against his foes. As those dark days hung over him with a load of responsibility that he felt unequal to meet, he would always go to his knees. He said: "I have been driven many times to my knees, by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. My own wisdom and that of all about me, seemed insufficient for that day."

Lincoln knew that if he won his fight against slavery, he would have to be reelected President, which was gallantly won, but he was martyred! On the evening of April 14, 1865, Lincoln was assassinated, dying next day, but he saw slavery abolished and the close of War. Born February 12, 1809, he was the 16th President and died at the age of 56 years. The only way in which he saved his country was to die for it. He was the miracle of the 19th century.

Advertisers in The Ocean Beach News are tradesmen and professions who are inviting you to come and see them. When you see their advertisement in our columns, they have goods or services of special merit that they ask you to sample. The United States has reasons for being proud of its Constitution, and as we celebrate the 147th anniversary, it should give the people renewed patriotism and loyalty. We can read history and recall those early struggling days when our Constitution was the compromise measure of 55 struggling American leaders who labored through the summer of 1787 to frame it, but it has been found perfect enough to be the model for practically all constitutions of popular government since that time. It has withstood tremendous attacks, but today is a victorious document that will live for centuries more as the guide to true American Democracy.

Residents of California do not half appreciate our native beauty so elaborately spread all about us. The hillsides and mountain foothills are ideal observation points where one can look out upon valley or ocean and get an inspiration that stirs one to ecstasy and rapture. Emerson, perhaps, felt the impulse as strong as any admirer of nature. He had the ability to put into words some of the most sublime expressions to be found in all literature. California abounds in grandeur that is a challenge to the Alps of Switzerland or ocean magnificence that surpasses the Mediterranean Sea. How true, too many cannot appreciate our natural beauty only as they read it in the books of inspired writers!

It is truly a fact, that many good citizens lose their perspective on life through a misunderstanding of themselves. The searchlight of understanding is going out in the wrong direction and at the same time reflecting the same virtues which belong to them, and with the right focus, would give them the research that they otherwise miss. It is a pretty poor state of existence, however, when you cannot find some good and useful quality in the worst of us. A lot of people could do better for themselves if they only could see that happiness is a condition of mind and not a disposition of circumstances. A helpless person who has his faculties and health is a walking tragedy. He thinks he cannot so much as lift a finger to do something without asking somebody else to lend a hand.

A lot of us are willing to "play the fool, and pay the price," just so we get the coveted desire, is all we care. It is an easy matter to look back on the mistakes we make, but it is not so easy to rectify them; this is what hurts. The saddest lesson which we have to learn is that "nature's laws grind on, and its mills are merciless." The repenting is always hard, and the ills from the effect are too often impossible to efface. Some time or another in every life one has a mental picture of himself and may be the turning point in one's starting out anew—whether in business, a position, a noble ambition or seeking to be of more service to others. It is up to that individual to make his choice and then stick to his resolve. "Throw your soul into gear and pull out," as one said, "Your will is the switch."

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN
POST No. 2415
AND AUXILIARY

An exceedingly rainy afternoon, so unusual to sunny California, was most enjoyably spent by some two score ladies at the home of Mrs. Fred H. Norris, 4420 Brighton Ave. Bridge and 500 were the medium of entertainment, followed by refreshments.

Mesdames Norris and Madigan felt that their efforts in behalf of the ladies auxiliary to the V.F.W. of Ocean Beach, were far more than well repaid with so much congeniality and sunshine prevailing indoors whilst old sol hid his face behind a bank of rain clouds outside.

High scores in bridge were won by Mrs. Marsh and Mrs. Nell Brown. Mrs. Dawnes and Mrs. Whaling held high score in 500, while Mrs. Whaling won the surprise gift made and donated by Mrs. Mary Roberts for the auxiliary.

Attention ladies of the Lt. Bert A. Allen auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Ocean Beach. We need your attendance at the meeting on Thursday, Feb. 14. Reports of committees on the years work to date, and plans for the future, will prove of much interest to our members.

Ladies, your president highly commends all committee women for the good work they have done and thank all friends and business firms for their earnest cooperation in helping these committees to be successful.

We hope to increase our membership by several at this meeting.

At the monthly card party of the post and auxiliary held Jan. 24th an enjoyable evening was had by all. Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. Henry Lancaster and C. E. Marshall, while five hundred honors were captured by Mrs. C. W. Whaling and Mrs. Johnson.

A stag card party at the post hall is contemplated for all members of the post and their friends for the evening of February 28.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

"The Fruit of A Christ an" will be the subject of the pastor's sermon, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The Young People's meeting at 6:45 p. m. will be led by Walter H. Dunn, and the subject for discussion is "What Is Success?"

There will be a fifteen minutes song service beginning at 7 p. m. and the pastor will speak on "The Religion of a Skeptic".

You will receive a cordial welcome at the services of this church.

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

The second birthday of the Warren-Walker school was commemorated February 1, 1935. Two years ago Mrs. Walker, the principal, started her school and continued thru the summer months with two students. The location was in the Kraft building. In the fall of 1932 the enrollment of the school increased and two more teachers were added to the faculty. The second summer the enrollment was large and in addition to the elementary and junior high school subjects taught, senior high school courses were offered. Immediately following the closing of last summer's school, the location was changed to 4867 Santa Cruz avenue, and the faculty was increased to six teachers.

Peter Pinney brought his interesting stamp book to school to share with his classmates.

Taking advantage of the good done by the rain in softening the ground, the students have been weeding and cleaning up the schoolyard as well as preparing the soil for new seed.

Joyceelyn Watters has returned and is continuing her studies in the seventh grade.

Lutheran Mission

"The Condition of The Christian Church Here Upon the Earth" will be the subject of the 10:45 o'clock morning service. Jesus brings out this condition and state of the Christian church very vividly in His "Parable of the Tares". We invite you to hear what He has to say.

The Sunday School lesson for this Sunday will be "The Death of John the Baptist". These facts—that Sinful Herod put John the Baptist to death because John opposed his wickedness, and that continuing in sins leads to greater sins—will be brought out in the various departments.

A very cordial invitation is extended to the general public to attend these services as well as to all Lutherans of the community.

STAND PORTER AT THE DOOR OF THOUGHT.

(Matthew 5—27-32)

27. Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery: 28. But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart. 29. And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. 30. And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. 31. It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give here a writing of divorcement: 32. But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery.

THE THEOSOPHICAL

SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Karman is the law of this and all worlds. Everything is subject to the law of cause and effect. Are then all the circumstances of life predestined? Are we doomed to either suffering or joy? Is the universe a madhouse and ourselves will-less specks on the Wheel of Life waiting only for the fated moment to be crushed as it inevitably pursues its revolutions? Or is there a "Law which moves to righteousness," the heart of which is Peace?

Emmett Small will answer these and other questions at the Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, speaking under the title "The Wheel of Life." Small is associate editor of "The Theosophical Path," "Lucifer," and "The Theosophical Forum," international periodicals issued regularly at Point Loma.

He will be assisted in the open forum at the close of his lecture by Dr. Lydia Ross whose experience as

We must reap precisely what we sow. No evasion is possible. Death does not settle the score any more than moving to a new town will pay debts in the old one.

SYNOPSIS

Ben Elliott—from "Yonder"—arrives at the little lumbering town of Tineup accompanied by Don Stuart, old, very sick man, whom he has befriended. He signals his coming by defeating Bull Duval, "king of the river," and town bully, in a log-birding contest. Nicholas Brandon, the town's leading citizen, resents Stuart's presence. He tries to force him to leave town and Elliott, resenting the act, knocks him down. Elliott is arrested.

"Are you guilty or not?" Able repeated and Ben Elliott who had stood at ease before him, slouch hat in his great brown hands, now gave his head a grave twist.

"Well, if pitching a man off the sidewalk into the mud is called assault and battery in Tineup, then I'm about a hundred per cent guilty," he said.

A stir in the room followed that and Able frowned, a convincingly judicial frown.

"Guilty, eh?" He cleared his throat at length. "Now how about this disruption of the peace, anyhow?"

The sheriff spoke: "You see, Able, 'twas this way, Mr.—"

"Now just a minute, Art. This accused has pleaded guilty, as I understand it. I don't see any need of anybody else saying anything. He's thrown himself on the mercy of this court, you might say, and it's regular and proper and according to the spirit of the statute that I question him before passing sentence. Besides," he added, with a twinkle at Brandon, "I'm a little curious."

The sheriff sniffed and subsided. Clearly, there was little friendship between him and the justice.

"Now, Mr. . . . Able glanced at the complainant again. "Mr. Ben Elliott, how come that you go about the country tossing reputable citizens into the mud?"

"Why, he was trying to make a friend of mine do something he didn't want to do. That's all. I butted in, I guess; he got hard and so,"—shrug—"I lost my head for a minute and put him in his place."

"In the mud, you mean."

"Yeah. In the mud."

"Well, go on; go on. Go back to the beginning. I want to know all about this affair."

Elliott drew a long breath. "I started for Tineup several days ago. I was a long ways off, over in Minnesota. This morning I got down to the junction west of here and while I waited for my train got talking to this old timer, Don Stuart, who was in the station. Maybe you know him, Judge. Other folks here do." Able blinked twice; hard. "The old fellow is about all in, I'd say. He's got it into his head that he's about to die and probably his guess isn't such a bad one. Seems this used to be his stamping ground, that he's been away a long time and that he'd started back to finish his days here where he could see some old friends. He went broke on the way and was just sitting there this morning waiting for something to happen. It happened, I wasn't any too well-beeled myself, but I had enough for his ticket so I brought him along.

"As luck would have it, I got a chance to pick up a few dollars of Tineup money as soon as we got in and I had to have it, with the old timer on my hands. While I was busy getting this cash this man Brandon evidently saw my buddy and started rushing him back to the depot to take the next train back to where he came from. I didn't like that so well. I tried to talk him out of it but Mr. Brandon isn't a great talker. That's all. Here I am!"

"Guilty as charged, eh?" Able fumbled with the papers. "What brought you such a long ways into Tineup, anyhow?"

"Because I'd heard Tineup was a tough nut to crack."

A stir in the crowd, then a sharp look from Brandon to Elliott.

"Fond of nuts, are you?"

Able asked and the look in his eyes was much less severe. "So you'd heard about Tineup and started for it from a long ways off and . . . Now this matter of nuts: You like all kinds?"

"Not all nuts; no." The steel-gray eyes were a bit narrowed, now, as Elliott tried to plumb the old man's mood.

"Well, for instance: like peanuts?"

"No. Can't stand 'em."

"Not at all? Almonds, then?"

A twinkle was surely coming to life in the court's eyes but, seeing it, the defendant only frowned.

"Can't vote very strong for almonds."

"Or English walnuts or pecans?"

"Never did hold them to be what you'd call irresistible, either."

"Hum-m. . . . How about black walnuts?"

"Now," declared Elliott with a nod, "now, you're getting into real classy nuts!"

Men in the crowd looked at one another, not knowing what to make of this.

"Well, if you like black walnuts, would you say they were your favorite?"

The other considered this question with great, if not wholly genuine, seriousness.

"No, not exactly. I'd put black walnuts high up in the list, all right, your honor, but since you're interested about my preferences in 'nuts, I'd say that the best nut that ever hung out doors or offered itself for the cracking was a good old hickory nut."

"Real tough ones, eh?"

"Real tough ones, yes."

Able wiped his face with a palm and wet his lips. The two looked long at one another and that spark passed which will jump from man to man, carried sometimes by a deed, often by a word, frequently by only a glance; that message which says as plainly as though inscribed in black characters against white background: "I like you; I am your friend!" It went from the old man to the young and back again from young to old. Nicholas Brandon understood and the lightnings in his dark eyes played more briskly, more ominously.

"And so you'd figure Tineup as a sort of hickory nut?"

"I had. Tineup has a reputation all through the Lake states. Wherever you go, you'll hear it talked about as a hard camp. I'd heard so many times that a good man with ideas of his own, with independence and, maybe, with ambition had better keep away from here that I found myself hankering to get a look at the place."

"What's your line of work?"

"I follow the timber. . . . Anything."

"Well, just what, for instance? What are some of the jobs you've held?"

Elliott smiled a bit.

"Good many. I was a chore boy once; another time I was a road monkey. I've teamed and sawed, worked as millwright and on rivers. Once or twice I've run a camp or two."

"But your avocation, I take it, is looking for hard nuts?"

Brandon spoke now:

"Your honor!" His voice was well modulated and yet in its quality was something which suggested iron covered with velvet. "As complaining witness in this case, may I suggest that we are beginning to waste time? This young man has pleaded guilty. Of course, I do not want to be put in the light of one who attempts to dictate to a court of law, but I have pressing matters to attend to and if we can get on . . ."

Outwardly this was only a suggestion, a plea; really, though, it was one way of demanding of giving an order.

"Yes, you're a busy man, Nick," Able said and nodded. "I'd sort of figured being busy here today, myself. Sort of wondered if somebody wouldn't bring in Bull Duval on a charge of assault and battery. He trimmed my man Harrington so badly that he's gone and my operation's without a boss today. I sort of thought, being interested as you are in law and order, that Duval might be brought in."

"That is something I know nothing about," Brandon said severely.

"Likely not. You can't be expected to keep as close track of the men who work for you as I do of mine. That is, it isn't reasonable to think a man of your caliber would."

He spoke drily and Elliott, watching the two, could see that his words stung Brandon. The justice straightened in his chair, however.

"But maybe we are delaying things. Now, Mr. Elliott, don't you think it a little out of the way to come into a town, a total stranger, and upset all that town's precedents? If you, instead of one of Mr. Brandon's hired men, had cleaned up on my man Harrington, for instance, it might not have been such a grave offense. But here you come and pick out the one man in Tineup who hasn't been strack or even threatened in longer than I can recall—a man who is regarded here about like most folks would regard a baron of the Middle Ages—and toss him out into the mud! Why, Elliott, that's not ever happened before!"

"Probably it didn't hurt Nick much, but there are his feelings to consider. Aren't you ashamed of giving people a chance to jeer at Mr. Brandon?"

Elliott looked at Brandon, then, deliberately, carefully, inspected him from his glossy black hair to his muddled breeches.

"It wasn't a very smart thing to do, I guess," he admitted. "It's not likely now, that I'll even get a chance to see how hard a nut this town really is."

"And no worse than you deserve!" Able said sharply. "You know better than to carry on that way, Elliott. I've got to give you a fine commensurate with your offense. I'll fine you a dollar and seventy-five cents for costs or send you to jail for a day."

In the rear a sacrilegious titter or two. From the sheriff, a grunt; from Nicholas Brandon a breath of offended dignity and a look that scorched. But on Ben Elliott's face only appeared a foolish smile.

"That's reasonable enough," he said, "but the Joker is this: I haven't even got the dollar!"

"Well, our jail's real comfortable, I'm told. A day there'll let you think over the advisability of going around the country muddying up the pants of respected citizens!"

Elliott, though, faced even so short a jail sentence with anything but relish. "I can get the money easy enough," he said. "That is if you, your honor, or somebody else'll send a wire for me."

"That might be arranged. Where to?"

"Here—" He reached for a sheet of paper and pencil lying on the table. Swiftly he wrote the words: "Badger Forest Products company, Beech Ridge, Wisconsin." He handed it to Able. "Will you wire them for twenty-five dollars and sign my name? Send the message collect."

"That's a big outfit," the judge said. "You figure they'll do as you ask?"

"Well, they never have turned me down for anything I've asked. Of course, there's always the first time. If you'll do that . . ."

"Until that gets back, Sheriff, I suppose it's me for the brig. . . . Is that right, Judge?"

Able was studying the address and when he looked up and granted an affirmative reply his gaze was far away. Far, far away.

For a considerable interval after his court room had emptied, Able Armitage sat motionless in his chair. His eye still held that far-away look, staring into space, and now and again he picked up the scrap of paper bearing the address young Elliott had written and scanned it closely.

"By cracky!" he said, an hour after being left alone. "By cracky—by jing! It might be, you know. . . . It may be, possibly, perhaps might be!"

Thereupon he rose, went to a wall telephone and put in a call for Nathan Bridger, general manager of the Badger Forest Products company, of Beech Ridge, Wisconsin.

After this he stood for a time in the front window, peering out into the street. A man came along the sidewalk, a man of about Able's years, bearing a limp and rusty bag which stamped him as a physician. He waved a hand to Able and then, as on sudden impulse, changed his course and approached the entry.

"Big day, Able,"—as the justice opened the door.

"Yeah. Big."

"Old Don's back."

"So I heard."

"Bad shape, too."

"I heard that. Real bad, Emory?"

Emory Sweet nodded gravely.

"Heart's like a sponge. He can't last long. . . . Nick was all for sending him back to Hemlock but I told him it would be murder to move him now."

"Oh, Nick showed up, did he?"

"Came right from here. Said he'd been providing for Don for these last years and wanted him with somebody or other in Hemlock who'd see he didn't get hold of hooch again. Was quite provoked when I opposed moving him."

"Nicholas doesn't like the notion of Don's being in this vicinity."

"It's about as popular with him as smallpox. When I'd prevailed on him to let Don alone I told him the truth that he can't last more than a few weeks and Nick looked like a man who . . . well, like one who's heard good news."

Able nodded. "Safer for Brandon to have him in his grave. But when old Don goes, seems like the last chance of ever clearing the thing up's gone too."

"Looks that way. Unless he'll talk before he dies."

"Even so, it wouldn't amount to much. He's an old bum; he was a known drunkard at the time. It happened so long ago, and with the courts controlled by who they are . . ."

"All but yours."

"And mine without any jurisdiction in sure-enough trouble."

The doctor started out but halted in the doorway.

"Hear Harrington's gone."

"Yes. The Bull ran him out of town."

"Brandon?"

"Don't be simple, Emory. Who else?"

"He certainly can't forget the flog-

Owl, can he? What are you going to do now, Able?"

The other shook his head gravely. "I wish I could give you an answer . . . or myself an answer. All forenoon I've had a feeling in that pain,"—extending his creased right hand, "as if the end of a rope were slipping through it."

"Tough," muttered the doctor as he went out.

An hour later Able Armitage left his office. He moved with great alacrity for one of his years and stopped only once and that was to draw Bird-Eye Blaine from the throng of onlookers that lined the sidewalk.

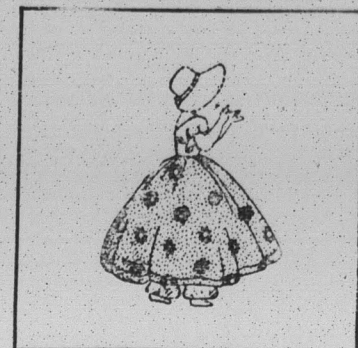

"Got your car in town, Bird-Eye?" he asked. "Have? Will it still run?"

"Run!"—as though insulted. "Say, Able, that car may not be so foxy lookin' as some, but she's got a heart av gold 'nd—"

"All right. Run her around by the jail, will you? Might need you; again."

Shells Uncover Treasure

Guns firing during the World war had no idea that they were bringing to light archeological treasures. In the shell holes in Yugoslavia, members of an expedition sent out by Harvard university have found treasures which go back to the Bronze age. Nearly two thousand sites have been marked out as a result of the studies of this expedition. In them, future digging will take place. Incidentally, by making a 3,500-mile survey of the territory, the scientists have uncovered Roman roads and fortifications which before were thought only to exist in local legends.—Pearson's Weekly.

OBLIGATIONS OF HEAD OF FAMILY

Subsidizing Worthy Sons-in-Law Among Them?

The responsibility for a girl's happy marriage at the normal time rests today with her father, not her fiancé, according to Good Housekeeping Magazine.

William McDermott, Chicago religious editor, discussing frankly the marriage prospects of his own daughters, in the publication, proposes a dowry to help depression-struck men to establish homes, rather than delay marriage past the age which nature dictates. He says he is willing to subsidize his sons-in-law for the first years of marriage, for the sake of his daughters' happiness.

"Why," he asks, "should I consider my obligation to my daughters completed when they have finished college, any more than when they have finished high school? I believe it is fully as good an investment—and almost, if not fully, as important—to spend two or three thousand dollars, or more, if necessary, in helping my daughters, if they need it, to marry happily during their mating time, and in assisting their husbands to complete their life-work preparation, if they have no other source of support, as it is to see them through their earlier education."

Mr. McDermott says that the hosts of non-marrying young men today depress him more than the financial crash. He believes undergraduates in college are too young to marry, but that the average graduate student is better off married, living in his own home, with a wife who is interested in his career, than in a boarding home or fraternity house.

"If either of my daughters should marry a man in training for a profession or business, I would urge her to study along with him, to act as his secretary and assistant as well as his encourager, and to aid him in every way to succeed," he continues. "She would be gaining much of that which will occupy him for a lifetime and which interests him most. They will have a unity or compatibility of education which can only enhance the completeness of their marriage and add to their companionship. If husband and wife grow up together in law, education, business, or profession, there is a common denominator of inestimable value."

Mr. McDermott believes the ideal time for marriage for a woman is between the ages of twenty-two and twenty-six. He approves of college educations for women, and believes they should be able to support themselves, and to have careers, if they choose, but not at the sacrifice of a home and children. The present tendency of society, he thinks, is to deaden the instinct for home and for children, and to cheat young people out of romance and idealism.

"The problem of marrying at the opportune time is not one for youth, struggling today against greater odds than ever to get ahead, but for the parents to solve," he concludes.

THE LOMAN REPORTER

Kenneth Christianson's return to his work in the commercial department is an accomplished fact after his considerable absence due to an operation for appendicitis.

The new semester has moved out from under all customary handicaps and complications due to an increased enrollment and restricted building space, with surprising speed. Classes are in full working trim, study halls are organized and settled, eleven hundred students are programmed and on the job despite the rain.

The objective set by the community and school to secure federal aid for needed health, recreational and social facilities at Point Loma Junior-Senior High school bids fair to be realized in the not too distant future. Representing the PTA, Mrs. Ida Bryant, chairman, presented the following digest of needs to the Board of Education this past week:

I. NEW BUILDING (containing):

A. Girls gym approx. 50x80 feet (with solarium for corrective work above.)

B. Boys' gym approx. 90x120 ft. (room for one standard size indoor basketball court plus bleacher seating capacity for about 500.)

C. Reception room or lobby between cloak room, lavatory facilities for men and women, so that either gym may be used for social affairs, dances, depending on size of affair. Kitchenette, serving room provided for serving punch, tea and light refreshments. Folding chairs provided so that PTA meetings, "Little Theater" programs, etc., might be held in either gym.

D. Adequate locker, dressing rooms, toilets, shower facilities offices for physical education instructors for both boys and girls provided in connection. Locker baskets installed to save space—sufficient space allowed for supply rooms, equipment, etc.

II. Provide two additional tennis courts (cement) south of present pair (using present backstop for both ends of new courts to save expense.)

III. Provide six handball courts along wall of boys' gym outside or against concrete retaining wall.

IV. Provide four additional outside basketball courts (wooden supports for baskets are cheaper and will do, but galvanized metal supports are more durable.

(Note: This entire program is highly desirable and will provide for the physical, social and recreational needs of the entire community. A director of recreation should be assigned by the City Playground Commission to be on duty afternoons and evenings. Federal funds are absolutely necessary for the realization of such a project. Whether or not federal funds are available additional facilities in the way of dressing rooms, showers, etc., for the girls are seriously needed AT ONCE for the present facilities are hopelessly inadequate even with a third of our girls excused from physical education, entirely. Next to additional classrooms, the girls' physical education needs are paramount and funds will have to be found soon to take care of this problem.)

OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL NEWS

At the opening exercises Wednesday morning, thrift certificates were issued to children who have been banking regularly this last semester. Children receiving the certificate are as follows: Betty Banfill, Dorothy Banfill, Mercedes Foresberg, Geraldine Geddes, Barbara Goeb, Charles Goeb, Margaret Goeb, Robert Goeb, Betty Groeschel, Dorothy Jackson, Betty Lou Jones, Mildred Lee, Sally Medlar, Teresa McConnell, Leona Padgett, Clayton Peterson, Maynard Peterson, William Reedy, Evelyn Steward, Barbara Stewart, George Taylor, Maurice Watson, Carl Yoshimine.

High six children whose names were not given in last week's issue and who were promoted to the junior high school are Phyllis Price, Paul Jones and Robert King. The pupils are now settled in their new grade and the social studies in the Ocean Beach school are well under way in each grade. For the first part of the semester, the children will study the following units: H6—Communication and recording of ideas. H6-L6—Harbors. L6-H5—Light. H5—Comparisons of pioneer and present day life. L5—Forestry and National parks. H4—Cultural and recreational life in San Diego. L4—Fishing. H3—Food and shelter. H3-L3—How and where we get our food in San Diego. H2—Zoo. L2—Health and cafeteria. H1—Airplane. L1-P1—Theatre. Kindergarten—Home.

On the first bank day of the spring semester, Miss Shea's H6-L6 class received the bank banner for having the highest percentage of bankers of any room in the school on Tuesday. At the opening exercises every Wednesday morning, the day after banking, the bank banner is given to the room which has the highest percentage of bankers. During this last semester, an increase in enrollment made it imperative that we have another teacher at the Ocean Beach school for this semester. Our new teacher is Miss Genevieve Figgins who teaches the L6-H5 grade in room 11.

Additional Loman Reporter

Yesterday, February 7, was a full day at Point Loma High for Julian B. Arnold, explorer, writer and lecturer. Thruout the entire day he addressed class after class on various subjects connected with his wide and varied travels in Africa and Asia. His illustrated lecture during the fifth period before the student assembly in the auditorium on the subject "Native Tribes of Northern Africa" was highly entertaining and instructive and his native Moorish costume most picturesque.

Teachers and students at Point Loma are glad to hear that Miss Frances Henking is convalescing after an attack of pneumonia which threatened to be very severe. All hope for her return to her classes in English next week.
